Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 1600 on Friday 26 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly dry on Saturday. Sunny spells developing.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry with clear spells at first. Cloud and rain reaching the Hebrides later this evening will edge east across the mainland overnight though becoming mainly light and patchy. Northwest Scotland becoming clearer by morning.

Saturday:
A damp start across southern half of Scotland but soon becoming dry and brightening up with some afternoon sunshine. Dry with sunnier skies in north. Mild with mostly light winds.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Fog patches clearing early Sunday then dry with plenty of sunshine. Remaining settled with some pleasant sunshine into next week, but patchy fog and frost at nights.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.